1 Version pinning and risk assessment for future package breaking

Through the file `renv.lock`, R version (4.5.0) and the package versions are pinned to ensure reproducibility and stability of the analytical workflow.

- If used packages depend on other libraries that undergo breaking changes in future versions, resolving those dependencies may become difficult when updating.
- Future R releases may deprecate functions that current package versions rely on. This could cause failures if the project is moved to a newer R installation.
